How to Reach Rijeka

(see more about Rijeka on Wikipedia: <https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Rijeka>)

The city's own international airport, Rijeka Airport, is located on the nearby island of Krk across Krk Bridge. Buses, with a journey time of approximately 45 minutes, operate from Rijeka city center and nearby Opatija, with a schedule based on the planned arrival and departure times of flights. Alternative nearby airports include Pula (about 90 minutes drive from Rijeka), Trieste (about 90 minutes), Ljubljana (about 2 hours), Zagreb (about 2 hours) and Venice (about 3 hours).

Rijeka has efficient road connections to other parts of Croatia and the surrounding countries; the A6 motorway connects Rijeka with Zagreb via the A1, while the A7 motorway, completed in 2004, takes you to the Slovenian border continues to Ljubljana (via Postojna) or with Trieste, Italy. The A7 acts as the Rijeka bypass motorway and facilitates access to the A8 motorway of the Istrian Y network starting with the Učka Tunnel, and linking Rijeka to Istria.

Rijeka is integrated into the Croatian railway network and international rail lines. A fully electrified railway connects Rijeka to Zagreb and beyond, towards the Hungarian border as part of Pan-European corridor Vb. Rijeka is also connected to Trieste and Ljubljana by a separate electrified line that extends northwards from the city. Rijeka has daily direct connections by train to Vienna, Munich, and Salzburg, and night trains running through Rijeka.

Have a nice time in Rijeka!
